One day I visited a school where one of our volunteers was busy with a class. "Well, good morning you beautiful children", I said. One little boy stood up. "Oh no, miss, we are special!", he replied. With tears in my eyes I knew that despite of his obvious circumstances, he realized how special he is and that is what the I am Special program is all about. If we can make children realize that they are worthy and special, despite of their negative circumstances, what a wonderful world this would be. But, if everybody has to wait for someone else to spread this message, what a broken world it would stay.
